REPORT OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

DISTRICT No. 1. Miss Fannie A. Shannon, Teacher—The scholars of this school, though few in number, seemed interested in their studies and tried to improve. The teacher seemed very pleasant and attentive to her scholars. We do not think there was energy enough on the part of the teacher to make the school what it ought to have been, though experience in teaching might prove differently.

WINTER TERM. Miss Marion E. Lyford, Teacher—Miss Lyford is a good scholar, and appeared to be very much engaged in her work. Good improvement was made in most of the studies.

DISTRICT No 2. Miss Alice B. Parker, Teacher—Miss Parker had a very quiet school and seemed to take a deep interest in it. Some of the scholars were rather heedless in their studies which made it unpleasant for the teacher. Being misinformed at the time of the close we cannot report the progress made.

WINTER TERM. Miss Lucy J. Emery, Teacher—Miss Emery is a good scholar, but we think she needs a little more energy to get much interest in school. A portion of the scholars did not appear to care for their books, consequently the progress was not what it should have been.

DISTRICT No 3. Miss Hattie N. Thompson, Teacher—This was an interesting school, both teacher and scholars were engaged in their work. The exercises at the close were quite interesting. Good progress was made in all the studies.

WINTER TERM. Mr. Frank A. Foster, Teacher- This term was also interesting. The scholars are well advanced considering their age. The manner in which the recitations passed off at the close showed that the teacher had been faithful in his efforts for the pupils and nothing was gone over that was not understood and explained satisfactorily.

DISTRICT No. 4. Miss Arianna H. Lyford, Teacher—Miss Lyford is a fine teacher. She took an interest in the school and got the good will of her scholars. There are some very fine scholars in this school. The exercises at the closing examination showed that success had crowned their efforts.

WINTER TERM. Miss Josie K. Neal, Teacher—The school, though large, was quiet and orderly. The scholars all seemed interested which made it profitable to them and pleasant for the teacher. At the closing examination the classes were prompt and showed thoroughness on the part of the teacher.

DISTRICT No. 5. Miss Louisa A. Eaton, Teacher—Miss Eaton is a fine teacher. She has taught several terms here in this district and always gives good satisfaction. The scholars all liked their teacher and took good interest in their studies. Very good progress was made in all branches of the school. If there were more teachers like Miss Eaton our schools would be more profitable than they now are.

WINTER TERM. Mr. A. L. Marden, Teacher—This was rather a hard school. The parents of scholars did n't seem to be interested, but rather discouraged, and showed little respect towards the teacher. Had it been otherwise the school might have been better. Some classes in reading and in intellectual arithmetic showed good improvement. Mr. Marden seemed to take an interest but could not get the life and animation that was necessary to make the school as profitable as it might have been.

DISTRICT No. 6. Miss Olive E. Sanborn, Teacher—This was Miss Sanborn's first attempt at teaching. The school was taken with a determination to succeed. Most of the scholars were well disposed and tried to learn. The teacher gave good satisfaction and fair progress was made.

WINTER TERM. The same Teacher—This term there were more scholars which made the school quite interesting. The scholars are not so far advanced as they might be were they so inclined. Good progress was made in some studies. The teacher showed the same interest this term as previously. With experience Miss S. may become a good teacher.

DISTRICT No. 6. Miss Mary C. Robinson, Teacher—Miss Robinson is a teacher of some experience, has taught several terms previously in this district. The scholars were interested and good progress was made through the school. We would not hesitate to recommend Miss Robinson to any one in want of a good teacher.

WINTER TERM. Miss Emma F. Stevens, Teacher—This was Miss Stevens' first experience in teaching. The school commenced with prospects of good results. But sickness being in school it was found necessary to close the school, therefore cannot report the progress made during the time it kept.

DISTRICT No. 8. Miss Emma G. Chandler, Teacher—This was Miss Chandler's first efforts at teaching. She seemed to be much interested in her school. The scholars generally made good progress. We do not expect to find a young and inexperienced teacher the same as we would one that perfectly understands it. Generally Miss C. gave satisfaction.

WINTER TERM. Miss M. Anna James, Teacher—Miss James is a highly educated teacher, and gave good evidence of it in school. Her manner of instruction is such as we like to see, and wish that more of our young teachers had the qualifications for teaching that Miss James seems to possess. The scholars showed at the close that what they had gone over was thorough. Progress good.

DISTRICT No. 9. Miss Marrilla A. Farrar, Teacher—Miss Farrar labored hard to promote the school. The scholars did not manifest that degree of interest they ought to have done to make it profitable to them and pleasant for their teacher. But with the untiring efforts of Miss F. good progress was made.

WINTER TERM. Mr. B. G. Blaisdell, Teacher—Mr. Blaisdell we consider a true scholar; and we think this school needed just this teacher. Not being notified at the close we cannot report the progress. The teacher in his remarks says, "The progress of the school was a decided advancement, especially in grammar. The scholars were interested and seemed determined to pursue their studies although the school has closed.

DISTRICT No. 10. Miss Carrie E. Plummer, Teacher—This was Miss Plummer's first school. She seemed interested as well as the scholars. Perhaps a little more energy on the part of the teacher would make her more efficient. Parents took some interest in the school and quite a number were in at the close. Through the whole fair progress was made.

WINTER TERM. Miss Lottie E. Payne, Teacher—Miss Payne promises to be a fine teacher. She seemed to awaken an interest which is very important in every school. The scholars were well disposed, earnest in their studies and consequently good progress was made.

DISTRICT No. 11. Miss Frances M. Heath, Teacher—Summer and Winter. This school though small numbering only three scholars was quite entertaining. The scholars are well advanced for their age; and they showed at the close of school that their time had not been spent in vain.

DISTRICT No. 12. WINTER SCHOOL—One term—Mr. Alban J. Hackett, Teacher—Mr. Hackett seemed to take an interest, considering what he had to work with. The school is so small that it is difficult for a teacher to find enough to employ their time. Good improvement was made. Mr. Hackett is a fine scholar and with experience may become a good teacher.

REMARKS.

In concluding my report to the schools, a few suggestions might be of some importance, especially to those whose duty it is to select teachers. A large proportion of those that style themselves as teachers are not fit for the situation. Although they may be good scholars, yet if they have no energy and faculty for imparting what they know to a scholar, they are not suitable for the place to which they aspire. Hence the necessity of being particular in the choice of teachers. Most of the schools the past year have had good teachers, but some have not ranked so high as they ought. A number of teachers were inexperienced, and did not come quite up to the expectation of the committee. If the parents would be more strict in the management of their children at home, it would be more agreeable in the school-room. Scholars that do as they please at home try the same thing in school. If parents and friends would visit the schools more and act as though they were interested for their children, it would make a great difference in the appearance of our schools. With these few remarks, I present my report to the public, showing in my mind the standing of the schools the year past.

H. C. WEYMOUTH, SCHOOL COMMITTEE.
